

The Hunting Sketches Bk. 2: The District Doctor and Other Stories

An intriguing confession of doctors romantic involvement with a beautiful 20 year old patient. Followed by Turgenevs exquisite, often meditative descriptions of Russian countryside and mysterious herbalist Kassyan infatuated with Gamayane, a prophetic bird of Russian folklore, a symbol of wisdom and knowledge. Read in English (unabridged). It s hard to die at twenty without having known love... Queer things happen in the world: you may live a long while with some people, and be on friendly terms with them, and never once speak openly with them from your soul; with others you have scarcely time to get acquainted, and all at once you are pouring out to him or he to you all your secrets, as though you were at confession. Track List: The District Doctor 01 Confession 02 Call Of Duty Kassyan Of Fair Springs 03 Hot Summer Day 04 Yudino 05 The Clearing 06 Oracle-Bird Gamayune 07 Girl In A Blue Frock In The District Doctor , a traveller falls ill and is treated by the local physician, who unexpectedly shares a story with the stranger. Once the doctor was asked to make a house call by a woman who believed her daughter might be dying. On his arrival, the physician finds a beautiful 20 year old woman who is feverish and initially unconscious. Although fully aware how ill she is, he nonetheless promises everyone that she will survive. He is immediately infatuated with the woman and spends days and nights at her bed side caring for this single patient. As Alexandras condition worsens and she becomes convinced her death is imminent, she professes love for the doctor. It s hard to die at twenty without having known love; this was what was torturing her this was why, in despair, she caught at me , asserts the doctor during his confession. Just before her death, the doctor lies about their relationship to Alexandras mother. Later the doctor marries another woman.

Did he marry for love, convenience, or money? In Kassyan Of Fair Springs we get an opportunity to marvel at Turgenev's divine descriptions of nature. They become so beautiful that one can easily fall into a state of deep meditation. We also learn about very strange and mysterious character Kassyan, nicknamed the Flea who seem to be able to speak to birds and astonishes Turgenev with his deeply spiritual views of the world and nature. We learn about Kassyan's deep love for nature and his fascination with Gamayunne, a prophetic bird of Russian folklore, a symbol of wisdom and knowledge. Turgenev's meditative admiration of nature. A marvellously sweet occupation it is to lie on your back in a wood and gaze upwards! You may fancy you are looking into a bottomless sea; that it stretches wide below you; that the trees are not rising out of the earth, but, like the roots of gigantic weeds, are dropping falling straight down into those glassy, limpid depths; the leaves on the trees are at one moment transparent as emeralds, the next, they condense into golden, almost black green. Somewhere, afar off, at the end of a slender twig, a single leaf hangs motionless against the blue patch of transparent sky, and beside it another trembles with the motion of a fish on the line, as though moving of its own will, not shaken by the wind. Round white clouds float calmly across, and calmly pass away like submarine islands; and suddenly, all this ocean, this shining ether, these branches and leaves steeped in sunlight all is rippling, quivering in fleeting brilliance, and a fresh trembling whisper awakens like the tiny, incessant splash of suddenly stirred eddies. You don't move you look, and no word can tell what peace, what joy, what sweetness reigns in the heart.
