

Rumpelstiltzkin, The Original Short Story: (Andrew Lang Masterpiece Collection)

There was once upon a time a poor miller who had a very beautiful daughter. Now it happened one day that he had an audience with the King, and in order to appear a person of some importance he told him that he had a daughter who could spin straw into gold. Now that's a talent worth having, said the King to the miller; if your daughter is as clever as you say, bring her to my palace to-morrow, and I'll put her to the test. When the girl was brought to him he led her into a room full of straw, gave her a spinning-wheel and spindle, and said: Now set to work and spin all night till early dawn, and if by that time you haven't spun the straw into gold you shall die. Then he closed the door behind him and left her alone inside.
