Believe me, Stella, when you fhew That true contempt for things below, Nor prize your life for other ends Than merely to oblige your friends, Your former actions claim their part, And join to fortify your heart. For For virtue in her daily Like Janus bears a double face Looks back with joy where fhe has gone$ And therefore goes with courage on She at your fickly couch will wait, And guide you to a better ftate. O then, whatever heavn intends Take pity on your pitying friends 1 Nor let your ills affect your mind, To fancy they can be unkind. Me, furely mcj you ought to fpafe Who gladly woud your fuffrings fhare j Or give my fcrap of life to you, And think it far beneath your due; You, to whofe care fo oft I owe That Im alive to tell you fo v TO MRS. MARTHA BLOUNT. Sent on her Birth-Day, June 15 OH, be thou bleft with all that heavfl can fend, Long health, long ybtith, long pleafure, and a friend! Not with thofe toys the female face admire Riches that vex, and vanities that tire; Vol. VI. L Not Not as the world its pretty (laves rewards, A youth of frolicks, an old-age of cards; Fair to no purpofe, artful to no end; Young without lovers, old without a friend; A fop their pafion, but their prize a fot; Alive, ridiculous, and dead, forgot! Let joy, or eafe, let affluence, or content, And the gay confcience of a life well fpent, Calm evry thought, infpirit evry grace, Glow in thy heart, and fmile upon thy face j Let day improve on day, and year on year, Without a pain, a trouble, or a fear; Till death unfelt that tender frame deftroy, In fome foft dream, or extafy of joy, Peaceful fleep out the fabbath of the tomb,...
